

The Closing the Gap Pharmaceutical Benefits Scheme co-payment Program – Information for Hospital Pharmacies

What is the Closing the Gap (CTG) Pharmaceutical Benefits Scheme (PBS) co-payment Program?

The CTG PBS co-payment Program improves access to affordable prescribed PBS medicines for First Nations people who in their doctor's opinion, would experience setbacks in the prevention or ongoing management of their health if they did not take their prescribed PBS medicine and would be unlikely to adhere to their medicines regimen without assistance through the program.

The cost of medicines remains a significant barrier to access for First Nations people. Under the CTG PBS co-payment Program, eligible First Nations people who are registered on the CTG PBS co-payment Register and who would normally pay:

- the full general PBS co-payment amount, pay the concessional rate when obtaining their prescribed PBS medicines from an approved CTG PBS co-payment Program supplier.
- the concessional rate receives their prescribed PBS medicines for free, without having to pay a co-payment, from an approved CTG PBS co-payment Program supplier.

For the CTG PBS co-payment to apply, the PBS prescription must be dispensed by an CTG PBS co-payment Program supplier. CTG PBS Program suppliers are:

- An approved community pharmacist
(approved under section 90 of the National Health Act 1953)
- An approved medical practitioner
(approved under section 92 of the National Health Act 1953)
- An approved private or public hospital authority
(approved under section 94 of the National Health Act 1953)

What PBS medicines are covered under the CTG PBS co-payment Program?

The CTG PBS co-payment Program applies to PBS prescriptions for ALL medicines listed on the PBS. Eligible medicines included are:

- All Section 85 PBS medicines (General Schedule)
- All Section 100 PBS medicines (Section 100), including the Section 100 programs:

- Over-the-counter and non-PBS medicines are not eligible under the CTG PBS co-payment Program.
- Where a brand premium applies to a PBS medicine covered under the CTG PBS co-payment Program, eligible First Nations patients will need to pay the brand premium at the time of dispensing.

How do First Nations people become registered for the CTG PBS co-payment Program?

To register for the CTG PBS co-payment Program, eligible Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people must be assessed and registered by a PBS prescriber or First Nations Health Practitioner (AHPRA registered) registered with Medicare as a provider, for the purpose of the program they are referred to as CTG PBS co-payment Program registering practitioners.

Health professionals within a hospital setting, who meet the requirements of a CTG PBS co-payment Program registering practitioner can assess and register eligible patients.

- First Nations people need to be assessed by a CTG PBS co-payment Program registering practitioner as being eligible before program registration can be completed.
- Registration of eligible First Nations people is completed via the Health Professional Online Services (HPOS) managed by Services Australia and covers patients even if they move to a different health clinic.
- In remote areas with limited internet access, a CTG PBS co-payment Program registering practitioner or their delegates, can phone Services Australia on 132 290 to register the patient for the program.

NOTE:

- Eligible First Nations people will need to be registered for the program before a reduced co-payment can be applied to any PBS prescription when being dispensed.
- Registration is a one-time, for life process.
- Eligible First Nations people not registered for the program will need to talk to their CTG PBS co-payment Program registering practitioner to see if they are eligible for registration.

General FAQs for Hospital Pharmacies

1. What is the role of a hospital pharmacist?

As a hospital pharmacist, you play a vital role in ensuring Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people can continue accessing their medicines affordably after discharge. You can help by:

- supporting prescribers and other staff to register Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people for CTG PBS co-payment Program,
- checking patient program registration status,
- contribute to discharge planning that includes program registration (if deemed appropriate).
- Your actions help bridge the gap between hospital care and community access, making sure patients leave with the support they need to stay well.

2. What to do if the patient is not registered to the CTG PBS co-payment Program?

If they are not registered, and believe they are, you should contact the clinic, CTG PBS co-payment Program registering practitioner or the discharge team to understand the situation, eg. if the patient underwent assessment for the CTG PBS co-payment Program. Pharmacists cannot register patients if they are not a delegate or without the appropriate assessment.

If the patient was assessed, but not successfully registered within HPOS, seek the CTG PBS co-payment Program registering practitioner or discharge team to complete registration before dispensing or, if you are a delegate, offer to support the process in which you can assist with registration via HPOS.

If the patient has not been assessed for the program, inform the patient of the following:

- Patients need to be assessed and registered by a CTG PBS co-payment Program registering practitioner, referring to the discharge team if appropriate.
- Pharmacists cannot register patients without a completed assessment or HPOS delegation arrangement.

Alternatively, the prescription can be dispensed at the standard PBS rate, without the CTG PBS co-payment Program benefit applying.

3. What do I do if a script says 'CTG', but the patient isn't registered?

You should:

- Use HPOS or dispensing software to confirm, 'CTG' annotation on the prescription does not mean the patient is registered to the CTG PBS co-payment Program.
- If they are not registered, contact their health service, prescriber or discharge team – referring to the above '2. What to do if the patient is not registered to the CTG PBS co-payment program'

4. How to charge the correct price?

Your dispensing software must apply the lowest permitted patient charge when the CTG indicator is present.

- If the calculated patient charge is less than the PBS concessional co-payment, the lower (under co-payment) amount must be charged.
- The concessional co-payment must not be applied as a minimum charge where the calculated amount is lower.

Do not:

- Apply any additional allowable patient charges;
- Manually override the system to increase the patient charge; or
- Charge any other additional costs.

Example: If the calculated CTG patient charge is an under co-payment, that under co-payment applies, even when it is below the PBS concessional co-payment.

5. Are there different requirements in relation to the PBS Safety Net?

Your dispensing software should calculate this automatically. The same amount should be applied to the patient's safety net record, as it would for a standard PBS prescription.

6. Can patients get a refund or be reimbursed if they register for the CTG PBS co-payment Program, after paying for their medicines?

No, patients cannot get a refund for medicines they've already paid for before registering for the program. CTG PBS benefits only apply at the time the medicine is dispensed if the patient is already registered.

7. Does a patient need a new prescription if the patient is registered for the CTG PBS co-payment Program after the prescription is written?

No, the patient does not need a new prescription. CTG benefits apply based on the date the medicine is dispensed, not the date on the prescription. As long as the patient is registered at the time of dispensing, the appropriate CTG PBS benefits will apply.

8. Does the prescription need to be marked with "CTG"?

No, a prescription does not legally need to be marked with "CTG" for a patient to receive the CTG PBS co-payment Program benefits. While the annotation is not mandatory, it is helpful for pharmacists to identify the patient is intended to receive the CTG PBS benefit. Be sure to confirm the patient is registered (through HPOS of the pharmacy dispensing software system) to the program before dispensing the prescription.

9. What are the differences between the CTG PBS co-payment Program and state subsidy programs?

The CTG PBS co-payment Program is a national initiative designed specifically to support Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people across Australia. It reduces or removes the cost of PBS medicines for eligible patients. In contrast, state subsidy programs may vary by location and have different eligibility rules, funding structures, or medicine coverage.

10. Is the CTG PBS co-payment available in NSW/ACT hospitals?

Pharmaceutical Reform Agreements (PRAs) affect how PBS medicines are dispensed in hospitals. While NSW and ACT do not currently have PRAs, this does not restrict access to the CTG PBS co-payment Program. Regardless of the PRA status, all hospitals are expected to support the CTG PBS co-payment Program.
